Rampur, the 3rd February 1955

No. 14770/Census-200 (50-51).—

ERRATA TO PART II-C OF THE U.P. CENSUS REPORT, 1951.

For Table D-III, "Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes", Pages 577—595 substitute the following :—

TABLE D-III

Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes

1. This revised table gives the number of persons of scheduled castes in the whole enumerated population of the State with separation for rural and urban areas. The original table which this table replaces, gave the figures by sex as well as rural/urban break-up classified into the eight census livelihood classes. For reasons explained in paragraph 5 below all these details could not be embodied in the revised table.

2. The following castes have been declared to be Hindu Scheduled Castes in Uttar Pradesh by the Constitution (Scheduled Castes) Order, 1950 issued by the President under Article 341(1) of the Constitution of India :

(1) Throughout the State—

1 Agariya	17 Beldar	33 Domar	49 Kol

4 Baheliya	20 Bhoksa	36 Ghasiya	52 Majhwar
5 Baiga	21 Bhuiya	37 Gual	53 Nat
6 Baiswar	22 Bhuyal	38 Habura	54 Pankha
7 Bajanliya	23 Boria	39 Hari	55 Parahiya
8 Bajgi	24 Chamar	40 Hela	56 Pasi
9 Balahar	25 Chero	41 Jatava]	57 Patari
10 Balmiki	26 Dabgar	42 Kalabaz	58 Rawat

15 Basor	31 Dhusia or Jhusia	47 Kharot	63 Turaiha
16 Bawariya	32 Dom	48 Kharwar (excluding Benbansi)

(2) In Bundelkhand Division and the portion of Mirzapur District, south of Kaimur Range—
Gond.

3. The following castes which were treated as scheduled castes in 1941 have been excluded from the list of Hindu scheduled castes :

- (1) Khatik (Kabarla or Chik or Chikwa)
- (2) Kori (excluding the Kori residing in the Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand Divisions)
- (3) Aheriya
- (4) Tharu
- (5) Bhuiar

The following castes are the new entrants to the list of Hindu scheduled castes of this census :

- (1) Baiga
- (2) Baiswar
- (3) Bhoksa
- (4) Dhusia or Jhusia
- (5) Dusadh

4. There are no scheduled tribes in this State.

5. The circumstances leading to the substitution of the original Table D-III by this revised Table are briefly as follows. There was only limited enumeration of caste in 1951 census. In U.P., however, all castes except those given in a specific list of non-backward castes were enumerated in the slips. At the time of sorting the slips were dealt with not by villages or mohallas but by whole tracts, which consisted of a whole tehsil in rural areas and a whole city or a combination of towns in urban areas. In order to determine the number of scheduled castes the sorters were given a list of the 64 scheduled castes mentioned above and asked to separate the slips of these castes (not of each caste individually but all put together). This was a difficult and strenuous sorting operation but was resorted to for the sake of its cheapness. At the time of this operation no instructions were given as to how the slips were to be treated if a person returned himself by a generic scheduled caste name such as Harijan or Achut or by a recognised synonym such as Raidas or Bhagat (for Chamar). In the result, sorters and tabulation offices dealt with the slips according to their own interpretation and there is no doubt that a number of scheduled castes persons who returned themselves by generic names or by synonymous names not finding place in the list attached to the President's Order, were left out of the scheduled castes count. Such a situation arose in several states of India and threatened, in some cases, to affect the number of seats reserved for scheduled castes in the legislatures. The Government of India decided, after careful consideration, that persons returning themselves by generic or synonymous scheduled caste names should be counted as scheduled castes and that census tables be amended accordingly, where necessary.

In U.P. fortunately a second count of the scheduled castes was necessitated by the requirements of the State Government for election to local bodies. They wanted figures of scheduled castes by villages in rural areas and by mohallas in urban areas. The census tabulation plan did not provide for sorting of scheduled castes population for areas smaller than a tehsil or urban tract. A fresh sort had, therefore, to be organised. It would have been a tedious and expensive operation if the slips had been taken as the basis and so the data was sorted from the National Register of Citizens, in which all the census slips had been copied and which had been prepared by villages for rural areas and by mohallas for urban areas. During this sort specific orders were also given for counting as scheduled castes persons who had returned themselves by generic or synonymous scheduled caste names. The figures thus obtained have been published in 1952 in a district wise series of "District Population Statistics". These figures are different from those published in Table D-III.

As it is not desirable to let two different figures of scheduled castes appear in the published tables it has been decided to replace Table D-III by the figures of the "District Population Statistics". There are several reasons why these figures should be considered definitely more correct than the figures of Table D-III. In the first place, the sorting from the National Register has taken into account persons returning themselves by generic and synonymous scheduled caste names while the original census sorting left the position uncertain. Secondly, the sorting from the National Register has been carried out carefully and slowly and even a second count instituted where the figures differed materially from the original census table. On the other hand, the system of sorting the scheduled castes figures at the time of the census sorting threw undue strain on the sorter and was liable to a large element of error. Thirdly, the National Register although a secondary record, has been proved by a sample check to be highly accurate, almost as good as the original slips. Fourthly, the total figure of scheduled castes for the State as arrived at from the National Register accords with the 1931 Census figure of scheduled castes much better than the figure of the first count.
